From block prints to traditional weaves, Indian fabric is famous the world over for its fine quality as well as the intricacies in the process of creating them. On this tour, we will see a block printing unit where fabrics are transformed using the centuries old process of batik block printing and another workshop where the most intricate of Persian weaves are trying to be revived. Some of these weaves are so intricate that it takes the artisans all day to weave just a couple of inches.

On the way, we will also stop at the traditional fabric market of the city where you can pick up the most stunning fabrics for your clothes and home furnishings at amazing prices!
